“ Brenda, I was sadden when I read about the loss of your grandchild. I can truly say I understand and feel your family's grief, sadness and pain. I too lost a grandchild last year. Know that God's love will heal your pain, and your sadness and in time, mend broken hearts of the parents and everyone who knew and loved Travis. The chain will link again. Again, I'm so sorry Sammye Anthony (email listed)

“ To lose a child is an incomprehensible pain and it is a sorrow I wish I didn't have to share with my best friend. Amy, you know I love Travis as I do my own and will miss him dearly. He always remembered his Auntie Kia with hugs and that smile. I will miss his out of blue texts just to say Hi. I will dream of Travis and Nina joyous and free of all earthly illness in paradise. We are so blessed to have a precious guardian angel. Matt & Amy I love you and my family will observe Travis' wake and funeral with a moment of silence and will make a donation to the Brain Tumor Foundation for Children in his honor.

“ i dont know you but god lead me to send this. it is hard to give up our loved ones, even harder a child. sometimes we question why lord, we become overwhelmed with grief, we even become angry at times, asking god why he took our loved one, but god hasnt taken your sweet little son, he has "received" him, he is in the arms of god, free from pain free from sin of this world. In a place more beautiful than we can imagine, a place of comfort and utter happiness. playing singing laughing happy for all eternity. God can only help you during this time allow him to be your comforter. my thoughts and prayers are with you and yours.
